Venue	Old Building, Room No. 22, D.A.V. P.G. College, Varanasi
Topic	Importance of English Communication

The Communicative English Programme, offered under the Department of English, D.A.V. P.G. College, Varanasi, organized a lecture on “Importance of English Communication” on 30 April 2026 in Room No. 22 of the Old Building.

The lecture was delivered by Dr. Aradhana Singh, Assistant Professor, Department of English, D.A.V. P.G. College, Varanasi. In her address, Dr. Singh highlighted the growing importance of English communication in academics, professional, and social contexts. She emphasized that proficiency in English is not merely a linguistic skill but an important tool for personal growth, higher education, employability, and global engagement. Drawing upon practical examples, she explained how effective communication enhances confidence, facilitates knowledge acquisition, and creates opportunities in diverse fields. The lecture focused on the four essential components of language learning—Listening, Speaking, Reading, and Writing (LSRW)—and stressed the need for balanced development of all four skills. Dr. Singh also discussed the role of English communication in academic writing, professional interactions, presentations, interviews, and workplace communication. Encouraging students to overcome their hesitation in using English, she highlighted the importance of regular practice, active participation, and continuous learning. The session incorporated interactive activities and discussions that enabled students to engage actively with the topic and reflect on their own language-learning experiences. A question-and-answer session followed, during which students sought guidance on improving fluency, building confidence, and developing effective communication habits.

The lecture proved to be highly informative and motivating, providing students with practical strategies for enhancing their communication skills and preparing themselves for academic and professional success. The programme concluded with a vote of thanks, expressing gratitude to the speaker for her insightful presentation and to the students for their active participation. The event successfully reinforced the objectives of the Communicative English Programme in promoting linguistic competence, confidence, and effective communication skills among learners. The programme was coordinated by Dr. Bandana Bal Chandanani, Course Coordinator, Communicative English Programme, and conducted by Mr. Khitesh Virat Sharma. Students enrolled in the Diploma and Advanced Diploma Programmes in Communicative English, along with learners from various disciplines, participated enthusiastically in the session.
